About Tate

Tate Reeves and his family

Elected in 2011 as Mississippi's Lieutenant Governor, Tate Reeves stands ready to help guide the state toward a brighter future through a focus on improving educational achievement for students, supporting the creation of high-skilled jobs and responsibly managing the taxpayers' money.

Reeves led the 52-member Senate in a successful 2012 legislative session with a focus on keeping government spending under control, reforming education and making Mississippi a better place to raise a family.

Mississippi will have a balanced budget for Fiscal Year 2013 that spends more on education and adequately funds other priorities for the fiscal year that begins in July. One of Reeves' priorities, setting aside 2 percent of state funds for a "rainy day," was adopted to provide a cushion in the current economic climate. The budget increased spending for education programs and controlled spending with a moratorium on state vehicle purchases.

Mississippi increased education spending and enacted consolidation reforms to save money and clearly communicate school performance. In an effort to make school district ratings more transparent, the Legislature changed the grading system to A, B, C, D, and F. The simplified grading terminology will clarify district performance for parents. Also, school district administrative functions were consolidated in both Sunflower and Bolivar counties, saving taxpayers more than $3 million.

The Legislature approved several measures to make Mississippi an even better place to do business. Reeves believes government should create an environment to encourage the private sector to create more jobs. The Legislature laid the groundwork by allowing businesses to claim a tax credit on inventory held in the state, which will encourage companies to invest more capital in creating jobs. The state's workers' compensation law also was reformed to ensure a more fair and impartial relationship between the worker and employer with provisions to better define the employee's choice of physician, implement stronger measures against workplace drug and alcohol use and increased certain benefits.

Several measures to make Mississippi a safe place to raise a family were adopted in the legislative session. Legislators worked with law enforcement and social services experts to enact new laws that would build a foundation for a better Mississippi. The Child Protection Act requires health care professionals, members of the clergy, educators, child care providers and law enforcement to report cases of suspected child abuse. Also, the Legislature took steps to end abortion in Mississippi by requiring doctors performing abortion to have admitting privileges at a local hospital. This measure not only protects the health of the mother but should close the only abortion clinic in Mississippi.

Previously, Reeves was elected as Mississippi's 53rd Treasurer in 2003 and re-elected to a second term four years later with 61 percent of the vote, the highest percentage of any candidate was running for statewide office. He was the first Republican treasurer in the state's history.

Reeves is a Rankin County native and a graduate of Florence High School. He is an honors graduate of Millsaps College and holds a bachelor's degree in economics. Reeves has continued to be an active alumnus and remains involved with his alma mater by serving as a member of the investment policy board for the Millsaps College General Louis Wilson Fund and a member the Advisory Committee of the Else School of Management.

In 2007, Reeves was named as one of 42 national "Rising Star(s) in the Republican Party" by Rising Tide magazine – the publication of the Republican National Committee. Furthermore, in 2008 Reeves was elected by his peers to serve as President of the Mississippi Republican Elected Officials Association. Also in December 2008, he was selected by the Aspen Institute's Rodel Fellowships in Public Leadership as one of their "Top Young Elected Officials" to its Fourth Class of Aspen-Rodel Fellows.

Reeves and his wife Elee Williams Reeves, a Tylertown native, are the proud parents of their two daughters, Sarah Tyler, Elizabeth Magee and Madeline Tate. The Reeves family attends Galloway Memorial United Methodist Church, where Elee and Tate co-chaired a past Capital Campaign. They have been very committed to many civic and charitable organizations in Mississippi – including the Mississippi Society of Disabilities, UMC Children's Cancer Clinic, UMC MIND Center, Mississippi Museum of Art, Mississippi Children's Museum, Girl Scouts of Greater Mississippi, Boys & Girls Club of Mississippi, YMCA, United Way, Stewpot Ministries and the Mississippi Symphony Orchestra.
