

Faculty Bios

UC San Francisco

Amy Levi, PhD, CNM, is a Clinical Professor, and Director of the Interdepartmental Nurse-Midwifery Education Program at UCSF. She is Visiting Faculty at Aga Khan University School of Nursing in Karachi, Pakistan, and a consultant to the nursing and midwifery faculty at Kamuzu College of Nursing in Malawi. Her focus is on the education and mentorship of nurses, midwives, and medical students in both clinical and educational settings using traditional and technologically innovative techniques, with a particular focus on the reduction of maternal mortality through the implementation of low-technology intensive skills such as uterine aspiration.
