Biography

Dr. Prine provides leadership for full-spectrum women's health care at the Institute for Family Health. She has a strong interest in the integration of women's reproductive health into family medicine teaching and practice, and maintains an active practice in which she provides the full scope of care to her patients, including medical and manual vacuum aspiration abortion. She engages in patient-centered research, and has published articles on related practices and research. She teaches early abortion techniques to family medicine residents at Planned Parenthood of New York City, and at the Institute's Beth Israel and Harlem Residency Programs. Dr. Prine is the medical director of the Reproductive Health Access Project and is active in the Society of Teachers of Family Medicine's Group on Abortion Training and Access. Dr. Prine works with residents on conference projects and presentations as part of the Harlem Residency's leadership development.
