Summary

Born and raised in Bangor, Maine, Julie Jenkins has worked in the field of women's health for over 25 years. In college, Julie worked at Mabel Wadsworth Women's Health Center as a clinic counselor and medical assistant while attending the University of Maine at Orono. After college, she left the state and spent a number of years in New Mexico, Massachusetts, and California, where she received her Masters in Nursing from Cal State Long Beach.

Julie has a varied background. She has worked previously as a Nurse Practitioner at the Berkeley High School Health Center (a school based teen clinic), at Women's Health Specialists, and at Women's Community Clinic--all in California's Bay Area. She also worked as a Sexual Assault Forensic Examiner at the Santa Monica Rape Treatment Center in Los Angeles, as well as holding a position as an Associate Clinical Professor at the University of California San Francisco before returning to Maine in 2011 to work at Penquis Family Planning and Mabel Wadsworth Women's Health Center in Bangor. In 2012 she traveled to Africa to work with PINCC (Prevention International- No Cervical Cancer), engaging in aid work providing cervical cancer prevention and treatment training with doctors and nurses in Kenya and Uganda. Since then, she has worked for Maine Family Planning at many of our clinic sites.

Her specialties include sexual health education, education on and placement of all long acting reversible contraceptives (IUDs and Nexplanon), and colposcopy. Areas of interest include transgender healthcare, menopause management, early infertility testing and counseling, and miscarriage management. Julie brings a focus on alternative health to her work (driven by her background as a massage therapist) and sex positivity and reproductive justice are guiding principles of her practice.
