Birth Control Tales

Our division of family planning at UCLA is happy to announce the addition of a new patient education tool “Birth Control Tales” aka BC Tales. In this tool, we are presenting theory based educational comics about birth control methods. The first comic presented will provide information about intrauterine devices.

We have completed pilot testing of this comic and are working on developing comics related to other birth control methods. The comic is available as a web page and as mobile applications in iOS and android platforms.
