Meet the Team

Your caring, compassionate Ob/Gyn physicians

Gynecology has come a long way in recent years, giving doctors and patients new and better alternatives to hysterectomy and menopause/perimenopause treatment. At Nevada Women's Care in Henderson, NV, Dr. Robert A. Gatlin is experienced with the latest, minimally invasive surgical techniques as well as hormone replacement therapy and care for women approaching menopause. He also has vast experience in obstetrics, including pregnancy, labor, delivery and postpartum care. He has helped three generations of women with all their health concerns.

Dr. Amy M. Falcone completed her OB/GYN residency at Indiana University School of Medicine in Indianapolis where she served as Recruitment Chief. She earned her MD at Ross University School of Medicine in Dominica, and her Bachelor of Arts in Communication Studies from Loyola University in Chicago. During her residency, she earned several teaching awards for outstanding teaching effectiveness. During her final year she was awarded the John E. Mackery award presented to the resident exemplifying human compassion and patient centered practice of medicine. She was awarded the Outstanding Community Service Award in medical school for her volunteer work and outreach. Her goal in providing care for women is empowering them to understand their body and encouraging them to ask questions until they do. She is well trained in laparoscopic surgery and does many in office procedure for patient convenience. She treats all obstetric and gynecologic conditions and has specialized training in sexual dysfunction and adolescent gynecology. She trained at a University with the most innovative and current medical technologies. She welcomes all new patients to our family here at Nevada Women's Care!
