The USMLE Step 3 is designed to assess whether an examinee possesses the medical knowledge and understanding of clinical science considered essential for the unsupervised practice of medicine, with an emphasis on patient management in ambulatory-care settings. Results of the examination are reported to medical licensing authorities in the United States and its territories for use in granting an initial license to practice medicine. The two numeric scores shown below are equivalent; each state or territory may use either score in making licensing decisions.

Examinee scores on the three-digit scale score are based upon the number of questions answered correctly on the entire examination. For recent administrations, the mean and standard deviation for first-time takers from U.S. and Canadian medical schools were [REDACTED] respectively, with most of the scores falling between [REDACTED].

[REDACTED] This result is based on the minimum passing score recommended by USMLE for Step 3.

[REDACTED] This score is determined by your overall performance on Step 3. A score of [REDACTED] is recommended by USMLE to pass Step 3. The standard error of measurement (SEM) for this scale is approximately [REDACTED].

[REDACTED] This score is also determined by overall performance on the examination. A score of [REDACTED] on this scale is equivalent to a score of [REDACTED] on the scale described above; this is the score set by USMLE to pass Step 3. Based upon recent administrations, the SEM for the two-digit score scale is approximately [REDACTED].
