Dr. L.L. “Tad” Davis, Medical Director & Founder

Dr. Davis opened Brookside Women’s Medical Center in 1976 to provide Central Texans access to comprehensive, informative, and compassionate gynecological care. His patient-centered approach has been adopted by respected colleagues in the medical community and become an integral part of modern gynecological care practice.

Dr. Davis is a Fellow of the American College of Obstetrics and Gynecology and board certified in advanced operative laparoscopic surgery with admitting privileges to all Austin area hospitals. He has been a clinical faculty member at The University of Texas Medical Branch at Galveston, The University of Texas Medical School at Houston, and Texas A&M Health Science Center. He is also a proud member of the American Medical Association, American Association of Gynecologic Laparoscopists, Texas Medical Association, Texas Association of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, and Travis County Medical Association

As Medical Director of Austin Women’s Health Center, Dr. Davis remains committed to providing patients with superior healthcare and exceptional emotional support.

Dr. Jessica L. Rubino, M.D

Dr. Rubino is a Board-Certified Family Medicine physician, first and second-trimester abortion provider, former Fellow with Physicians for Reproductive Health, and a fierce reproductive justice advocate. She provides comprehensive sexual and reproductive health care and believes that every patient across the gender spectrum, deserves that comprehensive care.

A message from Dr. Rubino:

“I strive to ensure that every patient feels they belong and are cared for. One of the most common questions I get is why I provide abortions. My answer is simple: because patients need them. And I am happy to care for you should you need me! Our clinic is beautiful, and the staff here are incredibly empathetic and capable. We hope you feel comfortable in this place with us.”
