My passion for comprehensive family planning services brought me from my home state of Texas to New York. During my second year of medical school, I fell in love with OB/GYN as a way to help women take control of their futures and have been devoted to it ever since. My outside interests include cats, sci-fi/fantasy novels, and deep fried foods.

My research interests are still evolving but I'm currently working on a QI project to make birth control options more understandable for patients in our clinic.

I plan to pursue a fellowship in family planning before returning to practice in South Texas.

Born and raised in the suburbs of Michigan, having the chance to live and learn on the East Coast has been a fulfilling journey. I feel so fortunate to continue my stay on the East Coast while training at Albany Medical Center--I love our program's support for their residents, easy resident camaraderie, and of course, abundantly varied clinical exposure. I have always had an interest in women's health and reproductive justice so I knew right away I would go into OB/GYN as I was applying to medical school.

I hope to participate in research related to contraception and abortion care and am looking forward to applying to Family Planning Fellowship. Outside of work, I love to attempt to cook all different cuisines, to bake cakes and breads, and to go on long hikes.

I was born and raised in a small rural town about 40 minutes outside of Albany. I stayed in New York State for both undergrad and medical school, and am very excited to be close to home for residency! I originally thought that I wanted to go into pediatrics, but after I delivered my first baby on my OB/GYN rotation during third year of medical school, I fell in love with the specialty. After that, there was a period of time where I considered specializing in General Surgery, but after much consideration, I decided that women's health and obstetrics were very important to me.

In my spare time, I enjoy spending time with my nieces and nephew, baking, and hiking. After I complete residency, I plan on going into private practice.
