reduce teen pregnancy via research, advocacy, and community education.

Research: We Guide Fellows from Study Design to Publication

- Complete a research project of your choice in the areas of contraception, abortion, or adolescent health that, in most cases, fulfills the requirements for a master's degree.
- Your research receives funding support, assistance from the department's research coordinator and research assistants, and analytic support from the Epidemiology and Biostatistics Core.

International Opportunities: Faculty Fully Support Your Elective Abroad

- Extensive connections and established training sites—such as Dominican Republic, Tchad, and Haiti—are available through Baystate's global health initiative, Tufts and UMass.
- Program Director Dr. White will help you to secure your international placement—generally 3 - 8 weeks between the first and second year, or in the spring of the second year.
