Amy Levi

Amy Levi, CNM, WHNP-BC, PhD, FACNM, is the clinical education consultant for ANSIRH's HWPP project. She is also an Associate Clinical Professor and Co-director of the INMEP Nurse-Midwifery Program at UCSF. Dr. Levi's research and professional interests encompass safe motherhood, clinical data sets, antenatal care, and midwifery education. She has extensive experience with Distance Education modalities, and launched the Distance Education option in the fall of 2005. She also works with students in the antepartum and intrapartum clinical areas, and collaborates with other researchers at UCSF. Her current research focus is on women's decision making in perinatal care. Dr. Levi received her undergraduate degree in Nursing from Widener University in Pennsylvania and completed her MS and PhD in Nursing and Certificate in Nurse-Midwifery at the University of Pennsylvania. To contact Dr. Levi: Email her or call 510-986-8944.
