Faculty

Women's Health Core Faculty

Jeffrey P. Levine, MD, MPH, Co-Director

Dr. Levine has dedicated his professional career to improving access and delivery of high-quality women's health care to the underserved, and he has achieved national expertise in contraceptive research, cervical cancer prevention, menopausal symptom management, and osteoporosis diagnosis and treatment. Dr. Levine has participated in multiple women's health clinical trials, published related scholarly articles, and given numerous CME presentations at national meetings. Dr. Levine has received several honors in recognition of teaching excellence, mentorship, advocacy and compassionate patient care. He is most proud of the legacy of women's health leaders he has trained over the past 25+ years. Dr. Levine resides in Hillsborough, with his wife, four daughters, grandchildren, and a menagerie of adopted animals.

Jennifer Amico, MD, MPH, Co-Director

Dr. Amico is a passionate family physician with a focus on reproductive health provision, research, and education. Her research interests include contraception and abortion research, including long-acting reversible contraceptives, doctor-patient interactions around contraceptive care, improving access to family planning, and experiences with abortion stigma. Prior to joining the faculty, she completed the Fellowship in Family Planning in Family Medicine at Montefiore and served as the medical director for a Planned Parenthood affiliate.

Anna Sliwowska, MD

Dr. Sliwowska completed her Women's Health Fellowship under Dr. Jeffrey Levine and Dr. Amico here in New Brunswick, NJ. This training has led her to provide comprehensive reproductive healthcare- specializing in contraception, cervical cancer prevention, miscarriage/abortion care, as well as PCOS and abnormal uterine bleeding. She is a part of the core faculty for the Family Medicine residency and directs the reproductive health training program for the Family Medicine residents and medical students.

Areas of clinical and academic interest include transgender care, gender affirming primary care practices, and family planning.

Mona Dalal, MD*Cari Benbasset-Miller, MD

Currently practices at Cambridge Health Alliance and serves as clinical faculty in Reproductive Health and Family Medicine Obstetrics for the Tufts Family Medicine Residency. Clinical interests include access and education in reproductive healthcare, obstetrics, office-based addiction treatment and HIV primary care and prevention.

Terri Cheng, MD

Assistant Professor in the Department of Family Medicine and Public Health at UC San Diego, practicing full spectrum family medicine with focus in women's healthcare including contraception management and outpatient gynecological procedures.

Anna Sliwowska, MD*Samantha Stimmel, MD

Sam completed her residency in Family and Social Medicine at Montefiore in the Bronx. Her interests include comprehensive women's healthcare for the underserved, women's reproductive rights and abortion care, education and transhealth. During medical school, she created a sexual health elective for her peers and volunteered as a reproductive health doula; during college, she acted as a peer counselor and educator for survivors of sexual assault and sexual health education. Her area of research has been focused on LARC methods and hopes to continue research in Family Planning services to make them more efficacious, patient-centered, accessible and compassionate.
