Doc quits Texas abortion clinic angry state is loaded with pro-life pregnancy centers while abortion clinics dwindle

UPDATE – Sept 10th Whole Women's Health has posted, "This week we've been approached by two physicians that used to work for us in the past but had since gone on to open up their own practices. Both of these physicians are highly-trained, professional, and want to come back to Whole Woman's Health to help us keep our doors open in Texas. Obviously, we're welcoming them with open arms."

The Texas abortion clinic chain, Whole Woman's Health has begun mapping the locations of Texas' crisis pregnancy centers.

Instead of praising the effort to offer women a "choice" the abortion chain is attacking the nearly 108 pro-life centers because, as they report, only six abortion clinics are expected to remain open after September 2014, the deadline for abortion clinics in the state to meet the standards required of ambulatory surgical centers, according to a new law which goes into effect November 1st.

Perhaps Whole Women's is planning to also close a ton of locations because they list 7 locations on their website alone! But their MAP shows only SIX abortion clinics will survive as listed here:

Planned Parenthood Center for Choice in Houston

Whole Womans Health of San Antonio

Planned Parenthood: South Austin Clinic

Texas Ambulatory Surgical Center in Houston

Southwestern Women's Surgery Center in Dallas

Planned Parenthood Southwest Fort Worth Surgical Center

In July Whole Woman's Health told the media that it will probably close five of the six abortion centers it operates in Texas due to the ambulatory surgical center requirements, according to Fatimah Gifford, Whole Woman's Health spokeswoman. Its San Antonio location is an ambulatory surgical center.

Whole Women's abortion clinic blogs, "We've been looking at Hospital Admitting Privileges, specifically, and how we can get them for all of our doctors in Texas, and after that our main focus will be what we can do about the ASC law that's set to go into effect in September next year. We've had some breakthroughs with the admitting privileges, and we're excited to see that there is so much support for us from the Texas medical community. On the legal side, we're planning a lawsuit with other organizations that will hopefully be announced sometime in September.

We know that it's going to be a long process, but we think we stand a worthy chance. HB2 will not pass into law without a fight from us."

We all know that abortion clinics are the upmost in good care – right? WRONG- I mean, the state has NEVER had to take an action against Whole Women's before?

Maybe the view of their founder that abortion is a RIGHT OF PASSAGE contributes to this negativity toward CPC's.

Amy Hagstrom Miller founder Whole Woman's Health abortion clinic

In 2012, the Lilith Fund honored Amy Hagstrom Miller, the Founder, President and CEO of the Whole Woman's Health abortion clinic in Texas.

Amy Hagstrom Miller began her speech by stating, "Abortion involves all the big things in life – sex, death, life, religion, family, money."

She astoundingly went on to state that, "Abortion is a rite of passage for many women..."

ABORTIONIST QUILTS:

Or perhaps it is the fault of CPC's that are devastating, but the fact that Whole Women's abortion clinic is losing their own ABORTIONISTS – who do not seem to be that committed to the abortion clinic chain. Notice the use of the words "I" and "ME" in this:

On August 14, 2013, WWH blogged:

*Yesterday, we received a letter of resignation from one of our clinic doctors:

"Thank you so much for fighting the good fight. A big part of me is sorry I'm not in there with you but I have to do what's right for me at this point."

"I have loved my work with WWH and have found it extremely fulfilling. I have also loved working for you."

"I am also worried about the uncertainty of my employment status in Texas. Will I get admitting rights? Will the government pull something else that makes it impossible for me to work there? Will the clinic close despite everyone's best efforts?"

Today we lost someone important.

Yesterday, we received a letter of resignation from one of our clinic doctors:

"Thank you so much for fighting the good fight. A big part of me is sorry I'm not in there with you but I have to do what's right for me at this point."

"I have loved my work with WWH and have found it extremely fulfilling. I have also loved working for you."

"I am also worried about the uncertainty of my employment status in Texas. Will I get admitting rights? Will the government pull something else that makes it impossible for me to work there? Will the clinic close despite everyone's best efforts?"

Like so many physicians in Texas that perform abortions, our doctors are understandably worried about their employment and the future of their field in the Lone Star State in general. As Whole Woman's Health Founder and CEO Amy Hagstrom Miller put it, "Legislative and organizational uncertainty led to us losing a talented, young physician to another state."

To settle the questions about the future of our company would require providing a clear and concise answer about what exactly we plan on doing. We cannot offer this, even we don't know what the end results of these efforts will be.

We truly hope that this is the last time we lose another staff member because of their being no perceivable light at the end of the tunnel. Right now, our focus is contingency planning and combatting the bad parts of this bill.
