

Business

Arkansas Abortion-Limit Challenge Speeds National Fight

Andrew Harris and Phil Milford

April 16, 2013, 11:01 PM CDT

Two Arkansas doctors sued the state over a law restricting the availability of abortions after the first 12 weeks of pregnancy in a complaint filed in Little Rock federal court, the latest in a series of challenges to a new set of abortion restrictions.

In the past several years, conservative state politicians have initiated a frontal assault on federal protections of abortion rights enshrined in U.S. Supreme Court precedent, with new laws passed from Idaho to North Dakota to Arkansas.

Terms of Service Do Not Sell My Info \(California\) Trademarks Privacy Policy
©2020 Bloomberg L.P. All Rights Reserved
Careers Made in NYC Advertise Ad Choices Contact Us Help