Abortionists in California: Why They StoppedPosted on August 31, 2012 by Tech

Abortion doctors leave their practices for a variety of reasons. Some have a change of heart. Sometimes the work itself takes a toll.

But sometimes they stop performing abortions because they have to. A disturbingly large number of abortionists have run afoul of medical boards and many have had their licenses revoked. A few have even been charged with murder or manslaughter for the deaths of women in their care.

In fact, Community Access to Reproductive Services (CARES) has been actively investigating the harassment and discrimination of abortion doctors by the Medical Board of California (MBC). CARES found in a recent study that nearly 90% of doctors of freestanding abortion clinics are on probation with the Medical Board.

Here are the reasons abortion doctors left practice in California over the past few years:

Lawson Akpulu: Bench warrant for rape.

Haifa Azawi: Unknown.

Kim Beauchamp: Revoked for violating probation.

Leon Belous: Retired.

Sean Tayebi: Just gone.

Bertha Bugarin: criminal conviction, currently in jail in LAC

Joseph R. Durante: deceased

Phillip Rand: License Revoked for Negligence

Nolan G. Jones: License Revoked

Ripton Wade: Deceased.

Over 30% of the abortionists in this list who left practice did so because their licenses were revoked or they were arrested. Some abortionists were impossible to locate or left for unknown reasons. Out of the abortionists who left for known reasons, just short of half stopped practice because of disciplinary action taken against them.

Note: Since I posted this, a reader made me aware of some other abortionists in California who are no longer providing abortion.

Bertha Bugarin-criminal conviction, currently in jail in LAC

Joseph R. Durante,-deceased

Phillip Rand, -License Revoked for Negligence
