Name: Christina Goesswein

Detail 19-year-old Christina was almost 23 weeks pregnant when she went to the office of Dr. Braz Bortot to get an abortion. Dr. Bortot referred her to Dr. Moshe Hachamovitch in Bronx, New York. Christina went to the office of Dr. Hachamovitch on October 17, 1990, and the first part of the three-day abortion procedure was started that day. She was sent home and told to return the following day to have her cervix dilated even further for the abortion, which would take place on the 19th. She came back on the 18th and had more laminaria inserted then returned home. That evening, her boyfriend called the doctor's office because Christina was having cramping. He was told to give her pain medicine. He called again several hours later because he felt that she was running a fever, but Christina told Dr. Hachamovitch's employee who was taking call that evening that she was okay. Early in the morning of the 19th, the boyfriend called the employee again because Christina was experiencing heavy bleeding, cramping and vomiting. Christina stated that she felt that she was in labor. The employee instructed Christina to go to the doctor's office where she and the doctor would meet her. They all met at the office and she delivered her 24-week fetus in one piece.

Because Christina was not recovering as she should have, Dr. Hachamovitch decided to admit her to an area hospital, but before this could be done, Christina quit breathing. 911 was called, and Dr. Hachamovitch began CPR. She was taken to a Bronx hospital where she was pronounced dead due to an amniotic fluid embolism. If you don't understand that a human fetus is a biologically unique, living member of the human species, you are not knowledgeable enough to have an opinion in the debate on abortion. Please do some research before you speak on the subject.

If you do understand this fact and you still support legalized abortion of human beings, please have the intellectual honesty to acknowledge that you do not believe in equal rights for all human beings and stop trying to claim that your position has anything to do with human rights.

I knew about Margaret & her racism and twisted ideology. So it's no surprise this fella was a first director for PP. It's so sad our ethnic communities don't see how they are being targeted & instead they are helping to eliminate their own people
