Thomas came to NVRH from Gifford Medical Center in Randolph, VT, where she practiced general obstetrics and gynecology. She has worked as an Assistant Clinical Professor at Hahnemann University in Philadelphia, PA and as a Clinical Instructor at UVM's College of Medicine. She has been the Principal Investigator on numerous research projects regarding women's health, including endometrial cancer and incontinence. Her interests include female incontinence, pelvic prolapse and gynecologic surgery.

Bob Hersey, NVRH CFO, said of Thomas' arrival, "We are delighted to have Dr. Thomas here. Her experience and skills, combined with her love of the profession, make her a great addition to our community, patients and staff."

Thomas has three children Benjamin (15), Isaac (13) and Leah (11). Thomas's hobbies include pottery, and exercising her two Jack Russell terriers, Maizie and Pedro.

To schedule an appointment with Dr. Thomas, call Women's Wellness at 748-7300.
