5 Years after Tiller's Death Women still forgotten by Abortion Industry

September 1, 2014 PBS, a tax funded organization, is slotted to show the radically pro-abortion film "After Tiller."

But amidst all this propaganda we need to shine a light on the women forgotten by the pro-choice reproductive justice abortion supporters.

The screenshot shows the PBS website interface. At the top, there are logos for PBS and KERA North Texas, along with navigation links for PBS.org, Video, Programs, TV Schedules, Shop, and Donate. Below this is a banner for "Support for PBS.org provided by" featuring a "NEW APP" for "DANIEL TIGER'S GRR-IFIC FEELINGS". The main content area is for the film "After Tiller" (#aftertiller). It includes a navigation menu with "OVERVIEW" (selected), "ABOUT THE FILM", "EXPLORE", "MEET THE MAKERS", and "FOR EDUCATORS & ORGANIZERS". The "WATCH THE TRAILER" section shows a video player with a play button. Below the trailer, it states "PBS Premiere: September 1, 2014" and "Online: Sept. 2, 2014 - Oct. 1, 2014".

Recently, the abortion lobby bemoaned the death of their "Dear Friend", late term abortion doctor George Tiller, who was murdered 5 years ago. But show me where they weep over the women they themselves injure, rape or murder inside abortion clinics on a fairly regular basis?

Tiller was gunned down by an anti-abortion activist in his church. Tiller aborted babies through all stages of pregnancy.

What I find almost nauseating is that the same people who advocate that abortion is safe and that they are performing abortions for women suddenly forget the women after abortion kills one. But, they can conveniently remember a man like George Tiller !!

As we rummage through twitter and facebook posts by the abortion and pro-choice lobby crying alligator tears for the man, George Tiller, I would like to remind the public the names of the women the abortion lobby fails to mention:

Lets start with Christan who died at the clinic owned by the "Beloved" Dr. Tiller:

- Gilbert, Christin Kansas, Age 19

Christin Gilbert
1985-2005

On Monday, January 10, 2005, 19 year old Christin A. Gilbert was brought by her family to Wichita, Kansas, for a third-trimester abortion at 28 weeks of pregnancy. Christin's abortionist was LeRoy Carhart who gave her baby a fatal digoxin injection to the heart. Her cervix was filled with laminaria and she was sent back to her hotel room. The following morning, Christin expelled her dead baby on the way to the abortion clinic. At this point, Carhart allegedly administered the abortion drug RU 486, approved for abortions in pregnancies prior to the 6th week of gestation.

She returned to the clinic on Wednesday, January 12, and was diagnosed with "dehydration" although the sepsis was already spreading rapidly through her body. Christin was again sent back to her hotel where her condition continued to deteriorate. Sometime that evening, Christin was cramping, bleeding, and vomiting, at times passing out. Between midnight and 4 AM, a clinic employee called Carhart who was on call for emergencies, but never responded. January 13, Christin fainted and, Christin's family drove their bleeding, unconscious daughter to the abortion clinic, where she was awakened enough to walk through the door with assistance, but then collapsed. At 8:48 AM a 911 call was placed by the clinic, who pleaded with the 911 dispatcher, "Please, please, please! No lights, no sirens!" The ambulance crew spent 15 minutes treating and transferred her to the hospital where she was given pain medication, but little else could be done. She was pronounced dead at 4:14 PM, January 13, 2005. Christin's heartbeat and respiration had stopped, or as the autopsy report stated, "she became unresponsive." On February 7, 2013 another women was pronounced dead following her abortion with LeRoy Carhart in another state. So it continues....Please visit

Lakisha Wilson:

Lakisha Wilson

The Cuyahoga County Medical Examiner's office released a statement this afternoon indicating that the death of Lakisha Wilson, 22, died as the result of a heart attack suffered immediately after she underwent a therapeutic abortion. The full autopsy report is not yet available, according to the statement.

This finding confirms what Operation Rescue has said since this tragedy occurred, that Wilson's death was an abortion-related one.

Wilson was given an abortion at the Preterm abortion facility in Cleveland, Ohio, on Friday, March 21, 2014. At 10:59 am that morning, a 911 call was placed and Wilson was later transported to University Hospital Case Medical Center where she was placed on life support. She was pronounced dead on March 28.

Marla Cardamone

After 18-year-old Marla Cardamone was killed having a "safe and legal" abortion, her mother, Deborah, vowed that she would never let her daughter be forgotten. Late last year, she approached Life Dynamics' President, Mark Crutcher and asked him to help her show the public the risks women face when they submit to abortions and Life Dynamics uploaded Marla's autopsy pictures here.

More on Marla: In 1991, the Pittsburgh Press reported that the family had filed a lawsuit against the Magee Womens Hospital where Marla was killed from her abortion.

Deborah Cardamone, in a seven-count civil suit filed in Common Pleas Court, charged the death of her daughter, Marla Anne, was due to "negligence, carelessness, recklessness or malpractice" on the part of the hospital and the doctors. Mrs. Cardamone is seeking more than $20,000 from each defendant and wants a jury trial. The 42-page complaint, filed Tuesday, describes 18-year-old Marla Cardamone's death from septicemia — a fast-acting blood infection — on Aug. 16, 1989.

"I'm not afraid to go into court with this. I know it is the truth and it happened," Mrs. Cardamone said yesterday.

Theodore Amshoff Jr., one of Mrs. Cardamone's lawyers, said, "This particular case won't decide the legality of abortion, but it certainly brings into question the safety of the procedure."

Amshoff is a partner in a Louisville, Ky., law firm that specializes in abortion malpractice.

Besides the hospital, the suit lists as defendants R.D. Molina, Fredric Price, Stephanie Lahet, Renee Caputo, Marvin Rulin and Michael W. Weinberger. The suit says they are doctors who cared for Marla Cardamone at Magee.

The Lawsuit was settled in 1997

Lawsuit over fatal abortion is settled

By Jon Schmitz
Post-Gazette Staff Writer

The parents of an 18-year-old Mt. Lebanon woman who died while having an abortion in 1989 have settled their lawsuit against Magee Womens Hospital and six doctors.

The agreement concluded more than five years of litigation that began when Thomas and Deborah J. Cardamone filed suit over the death of their daughter, Maria. It was reached on the day a jury trial was supposed to begin before Common Pleas Judge R. Stanton Wetick.

Terms of the agreement were not revealed.

"Everybody's happy that the thing is over. The parties have concluded it's in the best interests of the parties not to discuss any of the terms," said Wilbur McCoy Otto, the hospital's attorney.

As part of the agreement, the six doctors who were named as co-defendants — R.D. Molina, Fredric Price, Stephanie Lahet, Renee Caputo, Marvin Rulin and Michael W. Weinberger — were dropped from the case, Otto said.

The family's attorney, Theodore Amshoff Jr. of Louisville, declined comment on the settlement.

Marla Cardamone was 17 to 19 weeks pregnant when she reluctantly decided to have an abortion in August 1989. She was fearful that anti-depressant medications she was taking had harmed the fetus.

But after her admission to the hospital, Cardamone was invaded by a rare, fast-acting blood infection called septicemia. It killed her within 24 hours.

Amshoff, whose firm specializes in abortion malpractice cases, contended that the hospital and its doctors botched the procedure from its very outset, failing to give Cardamone sufficient information on which to make an informed decision about an abortion.

Expert witnesses were to be called during the trial to testify that inexperienced physicians made numerous errors in the abortion procedure, then failed to promptly recognize symptoms of the infection and arrest it.

"It was a tragedy from start to finish," Amshoff said of the case last week.

● Agbaaga, Eurice New York, Age 26

Eurice, who had come to the U.S. from Ghana to "find a better life," underwent an abortion by Dr. Abram Zelikman on January 7, 1989. She went to his Brooklyn clinic where a friend of her's worked, and was told by Zelikman that she was between 11 and 12 weeks pregnant. After the procedure, the clinic's receptionist became alarmed at Eurice's bleeding and asked that the doctor, who had already left the clinic, come back and examine her. The nurse eventually called an ambulance for Eurice, who was still bleeding, unconscious, and in shock. She was performing CPR on Eurice when the paramedics arrived, and they were able to restore her breathing. Doctors at Long Island College Hospital performed surgery, but Eurice did not come out of her coma. She was placed on life support, but on January 15, 1989 at the age of 26, she died leaving one child behind. The heavy bleeding was found to be from a perforated uterus and a severed abdominal artery, and her fetus was determined to have been at least 19 weeks old. The state health commissioner suspended Zelikman's license when an investigation showed that he had allowed the receptionist to give Eurice and other abortion patients anesthesia, that he failed to perform medical tests prior to abortions, and that he had left Eurice in the facility with no medical supervision. - Alford, Leigh Ann Stephens Alabama, Age Unknown

On November 25, 2003, abortionist Malachy Dehenre performed an abortion on a patient at the Summit Medical Center abortion clinic in Birmingham, Alabama, who was approximately 17.4 weeks pregnant. The patient was discharged from the clinic 20 minutes after the abortion was complete. The State of Alabama, Board of Medical Examiners states that in less than 6 hours after being discharged from the clinic, the patient's husband called to say she had developed abdominal pain and a low temperature. He was NOT told to seek medical care. The woman was later found by her husband on the floor, unresponsive and was transported to the hospital by ambulance. She was pronounced DEAD approximately 17-18 hours after being discharged by the abortion clinic. According to the autopsy report, the woman suffered a uterine perforation with massive hemorrhage. The Clarion Ledger reported that court papers identified the woman as Leigh Ann Stephens Alford of Blount County, Alabama.

Her uterus and a uterine artery were perforated during the abortion procedure, and despite hospitalization and subsequent surgery, she died that evening. Mickey left behind four children between the ages of one and ten. Previous to the death of this women, Showery was found guilty of the murder of a 5- to 7-month-old fetus he had attempted to abort. A number of other complaints were filed against Showery over the years, including that he charged women for abortions when they were not pregnant and that he falsified records to show that women were 20 weeks pregnant when they were past that mark. Showery died of unknown causes, He was 84.

AUSTIN -- The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals ruled Wednesday that an El Paso doctor convicted of murder during an abortion can be released on bond while awaiting trial on an involuntary manslaughter charge.

Dr. Raymond Showery was sentenced to 15 years in prison in the July 31, 1979, death of an unidentified infant. He was freed on $200,000 bond pending appeal, but the bond was revoked when Showery was indicted last May in the death of a woman during an abortion.

Pamela Colson, bled to death as she left a Pensacola abortion clinic, where she was a patient. The clinic botched her abortion so bad and then sent her on the way- to die on her car as she drove home. You have heard a lot about Pensacola and an abortionist murders, but the media says nothing about Colson's abortion death ! Why? Because the media is Pro-abortion and they will go to large extents to hide the brutal truth of abortion from the public.

On June 26, 1994, Pamela, age 31, underwent a first-trimester abortion at Pensacola (FL) Women's Medical Center. During the drive home, she started bleeding heavily and became unresponsive. Her friends stopped at a motel and called an ambulance, while two passers-by did CPR. At the hospital, an emergency hysterectomy, which was undertaken to save her life, was futile, and she died of massive blood loss caused by a perforated uterus. Ironically, this is the same clinic where abortion protester Michael Griffin shot and killed abortionist David Gunn one year before this woman's fatal abortion. Woman dies after getting abortion PENSACOLA A local woman traveling home after having an abortion died from severe bleeding, authorities said.

The 31-year-old Port St. Joe woman stopped at a Panama City motel late Saturday and was taken to Bay Medical Center. She was pronounced dead early Sunday, Panama City police said.

An autopsy showed the woman died from blood loss caused by a perforated uterus and lacerated uterine artery, according to Dr. Steve Havard in Pensacola.

On February 3, 2006, 21 year Denise Crowe dropped her toddler off with a sitter and drove with a friend to a clinic to get an abortion. Crowe walked into abortionist Romeo Ferrer's Gynecare Center abortion clinic in Severna Park, Maryland, for an $800.00 second trimester dilation and evacuation abortion in her 16th week of pregnancy under the mistaken impression that an abortion would solve her problems. Less than two hours after her abortion began, staff noticed that Crowe's nailbeds turned blue. The clinic did not have the equipment to revive her, and the 21-year-old died on the way to Anne Arundel Medical Center. Crowe's death was hidden from the public until April 7, 2010, when the Maryland Board of Physicians filed a petition against abortionist Ferrer for "failure to meet the standard of quality care" in his fatally negligent treatment of Ms. Crowe. According to records, Ferrer had given her a fatal overdose of Demerol, failed to monitor her vital signs, and took inadequate emergency steps to revive her.

After some delay, abortion clinic employees decided to transfer Glenda to the hospital. However, they did not call an ambulance, instead they opted to transfer her in one of their cars. Glenda's husband discovered them attempting, unsuccessfully, to transfer Glenda from a wheelchair to the car, so he went over and helped them. With the IV still in her arm, Glenda was driven to a local emergency room where she was admitted with no blood pressure and almost no pulse. She died three days later. She was 31 years old and the mother of two. (Harris County (TX) District Court Case No. 89-028771)

21 year old women dead from legal abortion: Anjelica Duarte had an abortion by abortion doctor Larry Thompson at a Las Vegas abortion clinic on November 1, 1991. During the procedure, her uterus was perforated and she began to bleed heavily. The clinic's staff kept her under observation, but did not initiate treatment or call for emergency care for several hours. Finally, paramedics were called and they rushed her to the hospital at 7:30 in the evening. Unfortunately, she had already bled to death and was pronounced dead at the hospital. She was 21 years old and left behind two daughters ages one and three.

Carolina Gutierrez, bought the lie that abortion is a safe, legal procedure. It took her six weeks to die from an infection so bad after her abortion that she developed gangrene.

On December 19, 1995, Carolina Gutierrez, a young Hispanic immigrant woman and mother of two, went to the Maber Medical Center abortion clinic in Miami, Florida to undergo a "Safe/Legal" abortion. At the clinic, she was given a business card printed in Spanish — and a sheet in English warning about possible complications of the abortion, including infection. Neither Gutierrez nor her husband reads English. When Carolina returned home that afternoon, she was staggering and complaining of pain in her belly and chest. Fever set in. She called the clinic and someone hung up. During the next two days, Gutierrez called the clinic at least twice more and left messages on an answering machine but no one called back. By December 21, Carolina was barely able to breathe and the family dialed 911. At Jackson Memorial Hospital, doctors said Gutierrez was suffering from blood infection so severe that she was in septic shock with an infection that led to gangrene in her feet and fingers. Lawyers for the family said doctors told them that her uterus was perforated at least twice. Within days, doctors decided the threat of spreading gangrene was greater than the risk of surgery and they made the difficult decision to amputate both of Carolina's legs just below the knees to contain the infection. Despite all of this, on February 5, 1996, the 21-year-old woman died, according to an autopsy, of an infection "subsequent to termination of pregnancy." When her death became public, the Maber Medical Center abortion clinic shut its doors. Operators Roque Garcia and Maria Luisa Garcia dropped out of public sight. Lawyers for the family say that their law firm received numerous calls from women who have developed complications following abortions performed at Maber or by its staff physician, Dr. Luis Marti. Their complaints mirror what happened to Gutierrez. The principal difference is that they survived, and she didn't. (The photo attached was taken by a pro-lifer who attended Carolina's funeral, with permission from the family). - Jackson, Louchrisser Texas, Age 23

On November 3, 1977, this 23-year-old mother-of-five had a 12-week abortion performed by Dr. Robert Gardner of Dallas. After the abortion, she began hemorrhaging from a perforation of her uterus. Three hours later, the hemorrhaging was still occurring, so a private ambulance was summoned to transport her for emergency care. In Texas, private ambulances are limited to transfers of stable patients and are prohibited from responding to emergency calls, therefore, they do not respond with any sense of urgency. An hour later, when the ambulance crew arrived and discovered that the case was a life-and-death emergency, they transported Louchrisser immediately rather than call for a fire department ambulance. She arrived at Oak Cliff Medical and Surgical Hospital in critical condition.

Blood of the correct typing had to be ordered from a blood bank at another Dallas hospital, but a little over an hour later, it still had not arrived. Desperately, Dr. Gardner gave her a transfusion of his own blood, which was of an incompatible type. Louchrisser went into cardiac arrest, and she died on November 4, 1977. At a different hospital, Dr. Gardner asked that Louchrisser's body be released without inquiry, but a doctor there learned of the uterine injury and notified the medical examiner of such. On September 9, 1989, Susanne Renee Logan was three months pregnant when she went to Hillview Women's Medical Surgical Center for an abortion. She was given Brevital, an anesthetic meant to lull her to sleep during the procedure. Minutes after the drug entered Logan's system, her throat tightened, restricting her breathing and cutting off oxygen to her brain, rescue records show. Eight minutes later, paramedics at the District Heights Volunteer Fire Department received a high priority call: A woman was unconscious; she had no pulse. Logan was left completely paralyzed, her brain so damaged she will never speak again, Logan later DIED on December 1, 1992 just three weeks after she won a multimillion-dollar settlement in her case. The Abortionist's name was Gideon M. Kioko. In 1991, CBS News 60 Minutes interviewed the head of the National Abortion Federation, Barbara Radford, shortly after Logan's abortion, because they found that many pro-choice leaders knew about problems at Hillview, but didn't want them publicized. Radford's response was typical, "Well, I think your first reaction from us was 'This is the last thing we need.' We had hoped that it wouldn't get national publicity because of the political nature of all of this," Radford stated.

On March 21, 2008, 23 year old Sherika Mayo, went to Summit Medical Associates in Atlanta, Georgia for the elective abortion of her 25 week unborn child. After the abortion, while in the recovery room, the woman went into cardiac arrest and was transferred to Atlanta Medical Center where she underwent a hysterectomy and bowel repair. Medical records indicate that vigorous blood product replacement was undertaken, but the women coded in the I.C.U. where she died. The Georgia State Medical Board reviewed the case and determined that the abortionist, Tyrone Malloy, "failed to conform to minimal standards of acceptable and prevailing medical practice." His license was reprimanded and while he was ordered to pay a $10,000.00 fine, he was allowed to continue practicing and performing abortions.

She got an infection from the abortion, which led to a blood clotting defect, renal failure and adult respiratory distress syndrome. She died on July 27, 1985, less than three days after getting the elective procedure. (South Dakota Death Certificate No. 140 85-003853)

41 year-old Karnamaya Mongar was a refugee who had recently come to the United States from a resettlement camp in Nepal, when she arrived at the Women's Medical Society abortion clinic. The West Philadelphia clinic, referred to as a "house of horrors", was owned by abortionist Kermit Gosnell. According to a report for the grand jury filed by the state's district attorney, office workers had Mrs. Mongar sign various forms which she could not read, and then began doping her up. She received repeated unmonitored, unrecorded intravenous injections of Demerol. After several hours, Mrs. Mongar stopped breathing. When employees finally noticed, Gosnell was called in and briefly attempted to give CPR. He couldn't use the defibrillator (it was broken); nor did he administer emergency medications that might have restarted her heart. After further crucial delay, paramedics arrived, but Mrs. Mongar was probably brain dead before they were even called. In the meantime, the clinic staff hooked up machinery and rearranged her body to make it look like they had been in the midst of a routine, abortion procedure. Even then, there might have been some slim hope of reviving Mrs. Mongar. The paramedics were able to generate a weak pulse. But, because of the cluttered hallways and the padlocked emergency door, it took them over twenty minutes just to find a way to get her out of the building. Doctors at the hospital managed to keep her heart beating, but they never knew what they were trying to treat, because Gosnell and his staff lied about how much anesthesia they had given, and who had given it. By that point, there was no way to restore any neurological activity. As a result of the cardiac arrest, she had stopped breathing and suffered acute anoxic encephalopathy – brain damage due to a lack of oxygen. Mrs. Mongar remained on life support until family members could make the trip from Virginia to say good-bye. She was pronounced dead at 6:15 p.m. on November 20, 2009. The medical examiner concluded that the acute anoxic encephalopathy resulted from the cardiac arrest, which itself had been caused "because somebody gave her a Demerol overdose." Gosnell was later arrested and charged with homicide in her death as well as the deaths of 7 babies he allegedly killed with scissors after they were born. Clinic worker, Sherry West, 52, has pleaded guilty to the charge, for her role in administering at least some of the fatal dose of Demerol.

Jennifer Morbelli, 29, a kindergarten teacher from White Plains, New York had been expecting a daughter, Madison Leigh. Jennifer learned her daughter suffered from fetal anomalies, and according to reports, she traveled to Leroy Carhart's late-term Germantown Reproductive Health Services abortion clinic in Germantown, Maryland. Sidewalk counselors at the clinic believe that Carhart began the fatal abortion process on Sunday, February 3. Jennifer was approx 33 weeks pregnant at the time. Witnesses in front of the abortion clinic, say they saw Jennifer return to the clinic over the next few days, but on Wednesday, they say she remained there for approx. 9 hours. Later that day, Carhart left the clinic, presumably to commit abortions in another state. At approximately 5:00 a.m. on Thursday, February 7, Jennifer presented at Shady Grove Adventist Hospital in Rockville, Maryland. Family members told hospital personnel they had tried to reach Carhart several times, but he did not return their calls. Pro-lifer Jill Stanek reports that at approximately 9:00 a.m. Jennifer coded. She coded a total of six times before she was pronounced dead at about 10:00 a.m. It was during this time Carhart called the hospital but never showed up. Jennifer and her daughter were buried Wednesday, February 13, 2013. Carhart was also involved in the death of 19 year old Christin A. Gilbert. Kathryn was a 20-year-old, Texas resident who went to Los Angeles to get a 16-week abortion. She was admitted to Bel Air Hospital for the saline abortion on September 1, 1972. By the next morning, she had a fever of 102° and she delivered a dead fetus about noon that day. Kathryn had a "fretful" night, went into shock early the next morning and was pronounced dead at 9:40 a.m. on September 3, 1972. The cause of death was from shock that started from the loss of blood to an ovary, which resulted in gangrene. On July 9, 1993, Guadalupe, age 33, underwent a second-trimester abortion at Metro Women's Center in Queens, New York. During the procedure, abortionist Dr. David Benjamin, a/k/a Elias Bonrouhi, lacerated her cervix and punctured her uterus, causing severe bleeding. Guadalupe was moved into recovery, but her condition was not monitored for over an hour. Although these injuries occurred during an abortion that began at 10:00 AM, an ambulance was not called until 1:40 PM. Upon their arrival at the clinic, paramedics found a breathing tube inserted into Guadalupe's stomach instead of her trachea, causing stomach fluids to travel up the tube, into the mask, and down into her lungs. One paramedic said he found Guadalupe naked and bloody, and a nurse was screaming and trying to revive her in a small, unventilated room with an inadequate oxygen tank and no necessary equipment such as a blood pressure cuff. She died later that day from massive blood loss. Guadalupe was a native of Honduras and had immigrated to the United States. She had been selling ice from a cart to raise the funds to bring her children to the U.S. At the time of Guadalupe's abortion, Dr. Benjamin's medical license had been revoked by the state medical board, but he was able to continue seeing patients while he appealed the ruling. Dr. Benjamin was successfully convicted by the state for second-degree murder in this case. His sentence was for 25 years to life.

Abortion doctor faces murder trial

■ Desperate: David Benjamin's botched cases injured five women and led to one woman's death.

By The Associated Press
NEW YORK — Guadalupe Negron was in a desperate situation. The mother of four was pregnant again and afraid she would lose her job as a nurse's aide.

She stopped out of her home in the Bronx on a summer day two years ago and went to a storefront clinic in Queens for an $800 abortion.

Negron paid with her life.

Hours after undergoing the abortion, she bled to death in a waiting room, allegedly alone and unattended.

In a case unprecedented in state history and a rarity anywhere in the United States, the doctor, David Benjamin, is on trial on murder charges, accused of doing nothing to help the woman after she was wheeled from the operating room in pain and drenched in blood from punctures to her uterus and cervix.

Opening arguments are scheduled to begin today.

The New York Medical Society said it has never heard of a New York case in which a doctor was charged with murder in the death of a patient during a medical procedure.

Usually when doctors are accused of botching a procedure they face malpractice suits or disciplinary action from regulatory boards.

Benjamin's attorney, Brad Leventhal, said the case belongs in civil court.

"This is frightening," he said. "A charge of homicide has no place here."

Queens District Attorney Richard Brown said Benjamin's "depraved indifference to human life" warranted the criminal charges.

Benjamin, 58, could get up to 25 years in prison. He has been jailed on $750,000 bail since his arrest.

Weeks before Negron went to see Benjamin, his medical license had been revoked by the state Health Department for "gross incompetence and negligence" for five cases in which he had perforated the uteruses of other patients.

He was appealing that ruling when Negron walked in, in 1993.

Negron was 33 and pregnant for a fifth time. She did not tell her husband, and enlisted a niece to help her.

The Honduran woman did not speak English, and like many immigrants she was afraid of anything "official" and did not want to go to a hospital, Negron found Benjamin's clinic listed in a Spanish-language newspaper.

By the time she had gotten together the money needed for the abortion, she was five months' pregnant. By law, Benjamin should have referred her to a hospital since she was 20 weeks along, but he did not even examine Negron before performing the abortion, Brown said.

After the procedure, Benjamin immediately began another abortion and Negron allegedly was shunted off to a waiting room, where she hemorrhaged, went into shock and then cardiac arrest.

When Benjamin saw Negron an hour after she was wheeled out of the operating room, he called an ambulance. He mistakenly inserted a breathing tube into her stomach instead of her trachea, Brown said. Negron was dead before she reached the hospital.

In 1989, Dr. Milos Kivana was convicted of murder in Los Angeles in the stillbirth of one infant and the deaths of eight newborns. Prosecutors said he performed the deliveries in his office even though they were high-risk cases, and refused to send the women to hospitals.

In 1983, Dr. Gerald Elmsaeger was convicted in New York of reckless endangerment and willful violation of health laws in the death of an elderly woman. Elmsaeger crosscutly ordered food pumped through her dialysis tube.

He was ordered to spend weekends in jail for a year.

The New York Times reported the story this way: As her life drained from her, Guadalupe Negron sat bleeding on an operating table, drowning in her own vomit as a doctor fumbled in a failed attempt to get oxygen into her lungs, a paramedic testified in the doctor's murder trial. The abortion doctor, David Benjamin, is accused of botching an abortion on Mrs. Negron — the fetus was 19 to 20 weeks old — so badly that he caused her death. At his trial yesterday, the witness, Freddie Neboa, a paramedic for 13 years, told of arriving at the Metro Women's Center in Corona, Queens, on July 9, 1993, and finding the bizarre scene after being told that the woman was suffering a heart attack. In riveting testimony in State Supreme Court in Jamaica, Queens, Mr. Neboa said that the doctor had inserted a breathing tube into Mrs. Negron's esophagus instead of her trachea. He also testified that the doctor's wife, Jacqueline Bonrouhi, was pumping Mrs. Negron's stomach instead of her sternum in an effort to perform cardiopulmonary resuscitation. "While the female was performing C.P.R. on her stomach, fluids and food were coming into her face mask and back into her," Mr. Neboa told the jury.

"There was no indication she was alive," he continued. "She was dead. When we arrived on the scene we advised the female to stop pushing her stomach. We checked her pulse and there was none. Her nail beds were blue. Her lips were blue and her pupils were fully dilated." Testifying before Judge Robert J. Hanophy, Mr. Neboa said that the woman had been in cardiac arrest more than 10 minutes. Realizing the severity of the problem, he and his partner, Miguel Acevedo, called for backup 10 minutes after arriving. "When we first entered, there was a lot of blood on everything, on the table, on her genital area, on the floor and instrument," he said. The doctor told the paramedics the woman's profuse bleeding was the result of some cervical bleeding after a successful operation. He added that Dr. Benjamin had not mentioned the life-threatening laceration to Mrs. Negron's uterus and vagina. "If he had told us about the bleeding, we would have done what we call scoop and run," he said, "meaning we would have taken her directly to the hospital. And we would have used mast pants, which pushes and squeezes blood to the heart brain or lungs. "I trusted this man that he would not lie to me," he continued. The prosecution contends that Dr. Benjamin tried to hide the fact that he had botched the abortion because he was already in danger of losing his medical license. After Mrs. Negron was pronounced dead at the New York Hospital Medical Center of Queens, Mr. Neboa said he tried to call Dr. Benjamin. "I got hold of a female," he said, "but she hung up after someone in the background told her to hang up." (NY Times)

On June 14, 1984, Germaine had a second-trimester abortion performed by Dr. E. Wyman Garrett in Newark, New Jersey. Four days later, she began throwing up and having abdominal pain and a high fever. The next morning, Germaine's mother found the 14-year-old dead on the bathroom floor. An autopsy estimated the fetus to be 22 weeks and found that Germaine's abdomen was full of pus and adhesions. The cause of death was from an abdominal infection and perforation of the uterus from the abortion procedure. When the New Jersey medical board investigated Dr. Wyman, they noted that he had altered Germaine's medical records. Twenty-eight-year-old Linda Padfield was hospitalized after Dr. Benjamin Munson performed a second-trimester abortion on her in June 1973. Munson had left a fetus of nearly five months gestation, missing a leg, an arm, part of the skull, and part of the torso, in Linda's uterus. She died from the massive infection that was created by the retained fetal parts. Munson faced trial for manslaughter in the case, during which the South Dakota Attorney General is quoted as saying, "You take a three-inch leg off something, you have to know that there's more in there than just the leg." The defense argued that the state could not prove that Munson intended to harm Linda by leaving so much of the fetus inside her. The expert witness for the prosecution said that infection would result in every case when so much tissue is left behind, and the defense argued that infection is an accepted risk of abortion. Dr. Munson was acquitted in this case. Ironically, he was tried for manslaughter in 1985 following the abortion death of 18-year-old Yvonne Mesteth, (see her entry for more information) and again, he was acquitted. 18 year-old Holly Patterson, died on Sept. 17, 2003, of septic shock caused by inflammation of the uterus. Holly Patterson had visited #PlannedParenthood Sept. 10, and on Sept 13, had begun taking #RU486 abortion drugs prescribed to end her pregnancy. The next day, she was crying and she told her dad she was having cramps. Over the next few days, Holly was bleeding severely, in acute pain and unable to walk.

By the following weekend, she was rushed her to Valley Care Medical Center in Pleasanton, given painkillers and released.

Holly went back into the hospital in the middle of the night and she died at 2 p.m. The doctor told her family that she hadn't aborted all of the fetus, and she had a massive systemic infection and went into septic shock.

Yvette, age 26, underwent an abortion performed by Dr. Marion Dorn, Jr. at Ladies Clinic in Charleston, South Carolina on July 16, 1985. Afterwards, the doctor failed to examine the tissue, and did not notify Yvette that the lab report showed no fetal or placental matter. On July 27th, she suddenly experienced sharp lower abdominal pains and was taken to a hospital by her fiancée. She informed the doctors of her prior abortion, but was misdiagnosed as having pelvic inflammatory disease, given medication, discharged, and advised to seek follow-up in two days. Throughout July 28, she suffered continued pain, and was advised by the hospital not to return, but to give the medication a chance to work. Early in the morning of July 29, 1985, she collapsed at home and was taken by ambulance to the hospital. She suffered cardiac arrest due to a ruptured ectopic pregnancy and was pronounced dead at 6:15 AM. - Preston, Vanessa Texas, Age 22

On January 22, 1980, the seven-year anniversary of Roe v. Wade, Vanessa underwent a 16-week abortion at Fairmount Center in Dallas. During the procedure, she had a seizure, then went into cardiac arrest. The abortionist, Dr. Curtis Boyd, and a nurse began CPR, and were able to resuscitate her. However, she went into a second arrest before the ambulance arrived. She was stabilized and transferred to a hospital where she became unresponsive. About 40 minutes into exploratory surgery, Vanessa went into cardiac arrest again. She received a total of 24 units of blood, and efforts to resuscitate her were continued for 90 minutes. Despite heroic efforts, Vanessa died that day. She was 22 years old.

An autopsy found that there were multiple vaginal punctures around the cervix and that the placenta was still attached to the uterus. The autopsy concluded that Vanessa "suffered a cardiac arrest due to the sudden entry of amniotic fluid into her blood stream during a legal abortion. The entry of this fluid into the blood stream created a condition in which the blood could not clot properly. Cardiopulmonary resuscitation was successful in restarting the heart, but also resulted in a relatively small tear of the liver. This liver injury would not normally be life threatening. However, in the presence of abnormal blood coagulation, the result was extensive hemorrhage into the abdominal cavity which could not be controlled at surgery." The cause of death was listed as amniotic fluid embolism and disseminated intravascular coagulopathy (DIC). DIC is a severe disorder in which the body, in response to initial clotting, mistakenly produces too much anti-clotting substance. It causes uncontrolled hemorrhaging and tissue death, and is a recognized potential complication of induced abortion. Dr. Curtis Boyd was a co-founder and board member of the National Abortion Federation, and Fairmount was a member clinic in good standing. (The Dallas Morning News: "Abortion patient dies after seizure," January 24, 1980, "Initial report exonerates clinic in abortion death," January 25, 1980; Texas Autopsy Report No. 0190-80-0095; Texas Certificate of Death # 07018; "Fatal embolism during legal induced abortion," Atrash, Cheek, Hogue, American Journal of Obstetrics and Gynecology, 162:4, April 1990, p. 986-90; "Fatal Pulmonary Embolism During Legal Induced Abortion in the United States from 1972-1985," Lawson, Herschel W., MD, Atrash, Hani K., MD, MPH, Franks, Adele L., MD, American Journal of Obstetrics and Gynecology, Vol. 162, No. 4, April 1990, p. 986-990.)

in Ms. Reaves' uterus and she began to hemorrhage. It is also known that the Planned Parenthood staff let Tonya lie there for over five hours before they sought emergency care for her. Of course, by then it was too late. She had lost approximately 30 percent of her body's total blood volume, before she died. Her family successfully sued Planned Parenthood for her wrongful death.

On March 25, 2000 Maria E Rodriguez obtained a so-called "Safe/Legal" abortion at the Family Planning Associates Medical Group in Chicago, Ill. She was approximately 18 weeks pregnant and the abortion was performed by Edward Steve Lichtenberg. According to a lawsuit filed by the family, Lichtenberg perforated Maria's uterus, a common abortion complication. While in the recovery room of the abortion clinic, Maria began to hemorrhage, and the abortionist recorded finding a "moderate flow" of vaginal bleeding. According to the suit, while Maria was deteriorating, neither abortionist nor clinic staff made attempts to determine the cause of the bleeding, replace lost oxygen, or transfer Maria to a hospital. It would be a critical 1.5 hours after the hemorrhage began before the clinic would transfer Maria to a hospital. Despite efforts from the Hospital to save her life she died later that evening.

Dr. Josephine Kamper performed the abortion on her. CRNA Lawrence Hill who monitored her discovered her blood oxygen levels were abnormal. When she began to cough up blood from her mouth and nose, the abortion clinic employee gave Antonessa a bag to breathe Instead of providing CPR. Antonessa suffered respiratory and cardiac arrest and died following her abortion. In a wrongful death lawsuit filed by the woman's family, the abortion clinic along with CRNA Lawrence Hill offered a total $555,508.00 in damages to the family for their negligence.

In 2011, state inspectors visited the abortion clinic and discovered such violations as dusty equipment, lack of a supervising registered nurse, and "frozen TV dinners stored in a biohazard lab refrigerator that also held placental or fetal tissue," the state issued an order on October 21, 2011 indefinitely suspending the license of Women's Aid to operate as a pregnancy termination specialty center (PTSC), and prohibiting the facility from performing surgical abortions. In 2012 the clinic was forced to surrender their medical license.

In 2004, 15 year-old Tamiia Russell sought a "Safe/legal" abortion six months after becoming pregnant by her 24-year-old boyfriend.

Russell ended up at the WomanCare abortion clinic in Michigan, and her adult boyfriend paid $2,000 to have the late-term abortion performed. The procedure, which was performed by abortion doctor, Alberto Hodari, took 2 days to complete. On her return home, Tamiia experienced severe bleeding. WomanCare told her family such bleeding was "normal" and not to take her to the hospital. But the family ignored the advice of the clinic and called paramedics anyway, only it was too late. Tamiia died on her way to the Hospital on January 8, 2004. The Wayne County Medical Examiner's Office deemed her cause of death "Uterine infarction with sepsis, due to status post second trimester abortion." Investigations into the WomanCare abortion clinic and abortionist revealed that they had numerous suits filed against them, and in March of 2011 Michigan Attorney General Bill Schuette filed a lawsuit seeking closure of the clinic.

Alicia Ruiz Hanna, 33, had limited medical training but posed as a physician and performed abortions at her Santa Ana clinic. She was convicted of second-degree murder and performing illegal abortions after a patient suffered a seizure on the examination table and died in January, 1993. Angela Sanchez, had gone to Hanna's clinic for an abortion. As two of Sanchez's four children sat in the waiting room, she died after reacting violently to an unknown drug injected by Hanna in preparation for the procedure. Hanna told the children that their mother had left without them, according to testimony. The children waited around most of the day, hoping for their mother's return, until a relative picked them up and began a citywide search for their mother. When they returned to the clinic in hope of finding Sanchez, they found Hanna trying to stuff Sanchez's body into a car trunk, according to testimony. Deputy Dist. Atty. Rick King said Hanna had made plans to dump the corpse in Tijuana. Abortion clinic receptionist Irasema Mendoza testified. "I told her to call the paramedics. I took the phone to call the paramedics but Alicia grabbed it away from me and hung up. She told me not to call them because I was going to get her into problems. "

Death during abortion spurs murder conviction

■ Alicia Ruiz Hanna had tried to get rid of the body after performing an unlicensed abortion on an illegal alien while two of the victim's other children waited in the clinic, prosecutors say.

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — When Angela Nieto Sanchez was one month pregnant, she took two of her four children with her to an abortion clinic. The next time any of them saw her, the clinic's owner was stuffing her body into a car trunk.

Alicia Ruiz Hanna had been performing abortions without a license or any medical training, cutting out the middle man — the doctor — to save money at her Clinica Femenina de la Comunidad in Santa Ana, prosecutors said.

"It's a case of greed," said Deputy District Attorney Rick King.

This week, a jury convicted the 33-year-old Hanna of second-degree murder. She was also found guilty of performing abortions without a license on Sanchez and two women who survived. Hanna faces 20 years to life at sentencing Jan. 27.

Sanchez was a 27-year-old, unwed illegal alien from Mexico, living in Orange, a town in Orange County, and working as a maid. She wasn't entitled to Medi-Cal insurance and couldn't afford the $2,000 or so a hospital abortion costs, compared with about $300 at a clinic. She came to Hanna on Jan. 19, 1993.

In court, King described Hanna as "a wolf in sheep's clothing."

"She's very attractive, has a very soothing sounding voice," the prosecutor said Thursday. "The clientele she reached out to — who were mostly illegal aliens looking for guidance — she would counsel them, which many times resulted in them having abortions done by her."

Sanchez paid Hanna $280 cash up front. Hanna took her to a treatment room, gave her Valium and injected her with a still-unknown drug, trying to induce a miscarriage. Instead, she suffered a seizure and died.

Hanna tried to revive the woman but testified that she didn't summon help because she feared arrest. Prosecutors said she prevented a co-worker from calling police.

Hanna then told the children their mother had gone home without them.

Later that evening, Sanchez's 12-year-old daughter Maria returned with relatives. She spotted Hanna trying to stuff her mother's body into a car trunk, the child told authorities. A former co-worker testified Hanna planned to dump the body in Tijuana, Mexico.

Hanna told the family that Sanchez had disappeared some time that day, then reappeared, knocking at the clinic window and fainting. Hanna claimed she had seen a man running from the scene, prosecutors said.

In court, Hanna admitted trying to hide Sanchez's death. But she claimed Sanchez died because she was high and had a bad reaction to the attempted abortion. However, an autopsy found no evidence Sanchez had used alcohol or illegal drugs.

Hanna's clinic had used several doctors to perform abortions until she found herself in financial trouble and began performing the procedure herself. She testified that she had done eight to 10 abortions herself.

throughout her abortion. According to the deficiency report issued after the inspection, Dominy completed the abortion on the sleeping woman then left the room. An unqualified worker was left alone with the patient. That worker occupied herself with filling out paperwork while the patient remained on the abortion table. Sometime later, she called for a second worker to help her dress the patient and move the unconscious woman to the recovery area. The second worker noticed that Santiago was pale and not breathing. Dominy was notified and returned to the procedure room where she sat the unconscious Santiago up and began a "sternum rub." No one at the clinic, including Dominy, had current CPR certification. A crash cart in the hallway was not used and the defibrillator was broken.

The inspector noted that Santiago's death certificate showed she died from Severe Pulmonary Edema, Acute Respiratory Distress Syndrome, and Hypoxia Brain Injury. No one knows how long Santiago went without breathing. It was found that staff failed to provide proper post-anesthesia care and observation.

OHCQ investigators found that the Respondent left a patient unattended for a period of time after administering conscious sedation to her and performing an abortion. A staff member informed the Respondent, who was not currently certified in cardiac life support, that the patient had ceased breathing. The Respondent undertook resuscitation efforts, after which the patient was treated by emergency services and hospitalized. The patient died on February 15, 2013, with causes of death reportedly including severe pulmonary edema, acute respiratory distress syndrome and hypoxic brain injury.

Former Florida Doctor in Trouble Again

Sarasota Herald-Tribune - Jun 24, 1985

ORLANDO (AP) - With his medical license suspended, hospital privileges revoked and reputation ruined by an abortion patient's death, Dr. Ronald Tauber left Florida in 1978, believing that his life could only improve.

Instead, it took a turn for the worse.

Now imprisoned for up to 50 years for sexually assaulting a child, Tauber says he's sorry he returned to his native Detroit.

He blames his 1980 child-molestation arrests on pedophilia - or a sexual desire for children - as well as on psychiatric malpractice, and a nervous breakdown related to being shunned by doctors when one of his patients died after an abortion.

The 38-year-old osteopath, who opened Orlando's first birthing center and abortion clinic in 1978, was charged with manslaughter in the death of Gloria Small, 34, of DeLeon Springs. She bled to death from a perforated uterus when Tauber performed her abortion at his clinic in March 1978.

Charges were dropped, but the state Board of Osteopathic Medical Examiners suspended Tauber's license for two years.

He went to Detroit and worked in an inner-city hospital, performing many abortions. The Orlando Sentinel reported in an article Sunday. He said he suffered a nervous breakdown there.

"Something was terribly wrong ... I went to a psychologist, who kept telling me things were getting better," Tauber said in an interview from Michigan maximum-security Riverside Correctional Facility in Ionia, where he's serving time for sexually assaulting a child.

Tauber is suing psychologist Thomas Kozak for $1.75 million, claiming the pedophilia that has plagued him since he was 14 years old was hardly improving. He said Kozak should have hospitalized him.

Tauber spoke of about 700 incidents with girls, ranging from "everything from fantasy situations - going off into believing myself in love with some young girl - all the way to actual contact, of which there were two."

Tauber was arrested for both.

proved he had forcibly transported a six year old girl in his car against her will. Tauber admitted exposing himself to the girl and placing her hand on his penis. He also lifted the child's undergarment to expose her vulva. Tauber released the girl when she began to cry. Tauber was also cited for masturbating in his car outside a high school where young girls were exiting.. Tauber was released from prison on January 3, 1990 and his parole ended on August 15, 1991. Tauber was later licensed to practice by the state of New York in August of 1992. Forget the fact that, based on the Michigan conviction, California revoked [Ronald Tauber]'s license to practice medicine. The New York State Department of Health believes that Tauber is fit to practice medicine.

According to Newsday, during Tauber's 1982 Michigan trial his psychiatrist testified that Tauber had confessed to exposing himself to more than 700 girls and women. Tauber himself reportedly testified that his psychiatrist had misunderstood him - Tauber had only told the psychiatrist that he fantasized about exposing himself on at least 700 different occasions. The husband of a Fountain Valley woman who died after taking the so-called abortion pill RU-486 has sued the drug's manufacturers and a local Planned Parenthood, accusing them of not warning her of the drug's risks.

The complaint, filed Sept. 26 in Orange County superior court, alleges Hoa Thuy "Vivian" Tran was not told about the possible link between the deaths of women who had taken the abortion drug Mifeprex - also known as RU-486 - and misoprostol, as well as any other risks associated with the drugs.

Tran died Dec. 29, 2003 - six days after beginning the drugs' cycle. She was 22. An autopsy revealed evidence of sepsis, an illness caused by infection in the bloodstream, according to the complaint.

This 17-year-old teen underwent a 20 to 22-week abortion by Dr. Robert Crist on November 2, 1991, at West Loop Clinic in Houston. Afterward, she started bleeding heavily, and asked the staff for help. She was told that her symptoms were normal, and was sent home without any provision to monitor her. Later that evening, she stopped breathing. Her brother-in-law called 911 while her sister did CPR. She was pronounced dead upon arrival at a local hospital. 38 year-old Brenda Vise died on September 12, 2001, after having an abortion at the Volunteer Women's Clinic in Knoxville Tennessee.

A lawsuit filed by her estate claims the abortion clinic did not discern that Ms. Vise was having a tubal pregnancy. It was estimated that Ms. Vise was approximately six weeks pregnant. Clinic personnel prescribed Mifeprex, also known as RU-486, commonly referred to as the "abortion pill." After receiving the initial dose of Mifeprex at the clinic, Ms. Vise returned home and began experiencing problems. Multiple calls were placed to the clinic as her condition worsened, and in every instance Ms. Vise was advised that her symptoms were normal and routine. The clinic never suggested that Ms. Vise return to the clinic so she could be examined by a medical doctor to verify the complications were not serious. Ms Vise was finally taken to a Chattanooga hospital but it was too late to save her. Brenda Vise's death was a tragedy. Family Files Abortion-Related Wrongful Death Suit

By MICHAEL DATCHER Staff Writer

On Monday, little black boys and girls held hands and white picketers as tall as they were. "JUSTICE FOR THE WRONGFUL DEATH OF TATANISHA WESSON," the signs read.

Ta Tanisha Wesson's parents, extended family and friends gathered in front of the Family Planning Associates abortion clinic to hold a press conference announcing their wrongful death suit against the clinic owner, Dr. Edward C. Allred.

Ta Tanisha Wesson's father, Lin Wesson, said, "My daughter went to this abortion clinic and never came home."

According to the Wesson's attorney, William M. McMillan III, on January 26 of this year, Ta Tanisha Wesson, 24, and a female friend, Mickey Gaton, went to the Family Planning Associates clinic located at 601 So. Westmoreland near downtown.

While Gaton sat in the waiting area, Ta Tanisha was given an abortion. Complications arose and several hours later, Gaton saw an ambulance outside the clinic and found out the person was Ta Tanisha.

Although the clinic staff knew that Gaton was with Ta Tanisha, she was not informed of the very serious complications.

Gaton called Ta Tanisha's parents, who rushed down to the clinic but were not given any information by the staff.

"Everything was done in secrecy," Lin Wesson said.

Ta Tanisha Wesson never recovered from a coma-like state. She died in the hospital leaving David, her 5-year-old son.

Family spokesperson Susan Carpenter McMillan said, gesturing to David who has a baseball cap pulled over his head, "All my words could never speak as eloquently as the expression on this little boy's face who will never see his mother again."

Attorney McMillan spoke about the details of the wrongful death suit. "This death could have definitely been avoided. In our wrongful death suit, we are claiming that Ta Tanisha Wesson was given too much anesthesia, which caused her to vomit and choke.

"We are claiming negligence by the clinic staff who were not present when she began vomiting and ultimately delayed 20-25 minutes before calling for emergency help," McMillan said.

The attorney also stated that several abortion-related lawsuits have been filed against Allred in the past.

Dr. Edward C. Allred has a troubling approach to his abortion business and equally troubling attitudes towards African Americans.

In an article published in the San Diego Union newspaper in 1989, the doctor expressed some of his views.

"Allred and his staff work quickly. Allred likes to spend no more than five minutes on each abortion," the article states.

The San Diego Union quotes Allred, "We try to use the physician for his technical skill and reduce the one-to-one relationship with the patient... we usually see the patient for the first time on the operating table and then see again. Most contact is just not efficient."

In the same article Allred makes the following comment about African Americans: "When a sullen black woman of 17 or 18 has decided to have a baby and get welfare and food stamps and become a burden to all of us, it's time to stop. In parts of South Los Angeles having babies for welfare is the only industry the people have."

Spokesperson Susan Carpenter McMillan, who is white, said, "Since white abortionists Allred has a history of racist remarks and Ta Tanisha is African American, we question if her death was due to outrageous medical practice alone or if the fact that she is black made the clinic even less attentive to her condition."

The Wessons want a full investigation into the matter and hope to have the clinic closed down.

An anguished Lin Wesson approached the microphone, clearly trying to be strong for his weeping wife, Nichole, standing by his side. "We are here to seek justice. Justice for our daughter Ta Tanisha Wesson. Justice is our weapon. We did not come here with guns and knives like criminals. We have come armed with justice in our legal system. Justice is our weapon," he said.

Abortion doctor Edward C. Allred had troubling attitudes toward African Americans. Allred once publicly stated, "When a sullen black woman of 17 or 18 can decide to have a baby and get welfare and food stamps and become a burden to all of us, it's time to stop..." In 1995, the abortion clinic Allred ran would be accused of racism in the abortion-related death of a 24 year-old African American woman. It was in January of 1995, that 24 year-old African American TaTanisha Wesson went to the Family Planning Associates abortion clinic in Los Angeles, for an abortion and never came home. TaTanisha died in the hospital on February 1, 1995, leaving behind her 5 year old born son. An attorney for the family told the press that the abortion clinic gave TaTanisha too much anesthesia, that clinic staff was not present when she began to vomit, and that the abortion clinic delayed calling 911 for approx. 25 critical minutes. Her parents then accused the abortionist of racism in their daughter's death. TaTanisha is one of many women who believed the lie that legal abortion made a "safe" abortion.

22 Year old dies from Planned Parenthood run abortion clinic: 22 year-old Nichole Williams went to Reproductive Health Services in St. Louis for a first-trimester #abortion on April 25, 1997. She would not return home. Reproductive Health is run by Planned Parenthood of St. Louis, and the abortion was performed by Dr. Robert Crist, who is their medical director. According to local media reports, Williams had been given Lidocaine, a local anesthetic, and Vasopressin, for the five-minute procedure. Seconds before Crist finished, the abortionist saw that something was wrong with Williams' breathing. Crist completed the abortion and ordered the staff at his abortion clinic to call 911. Oxygen was administered, and the medical staff began resuscitation efforts as Williams' vital signs continued to fail. Fifteen minutes later, an ambulance crew found Williams in full cardiac arrest. She was pronounced dead at Barnes-Jewish Hospital. Tamara Morris, a spokeswoman for Planned Parenthood said that Crist regularly travels to St. Louis to perform abortions and has performed more than 100,000 abortions nationwide, at that time. The Planned Parenthood spokesperson told the media that Williams is his third patient to die during or after an abortion-related procedure. At the time of William's death, Crist also had six lawsuits filed against him over medical procedures. The Planned Parenthood spokesperson praised the abortionist telling the St. Louis Post-Dispatch that, "Dr. Crist has a wonderful reputation. He is a very respected physician. There's always a risk in any kind of surgery."
