ROCKFORD, Ill. (WIFR) - Rockford is an epicenter for a heated debate over the opening of an abortion clinic. But challenges against the city, the facility on Auburn Street is officially open for patients.

"I'd rather be doing medical stuff, than political stuff, it has been an interesting journey," said Dr. Dennis Christensen. "We're able to open the doors, I'm disappointed it took so long to do it."

Nearly six months after Christensen announced his plans to open the clinic, the center officially opened its doors Tuesday.

"We've got the technology, we've got the experience," said Dr. Christensen. "We have the tools, this should not

"In the 50,000 patients I've personally treated, I haven't had one come back and say I wish I hadn't had the abo
